

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

The present invention is to provide a cellular phone for multiple way call, which comprises IR device, the IR device being activated when the cellular phone is in connection with a base station for conveying speeches with a plurality of second cellular phones nearby each having the IR device so that the 5 cellular phone is able to carry out multiple way call with the second cellular phones for discussion via the base station or vice versa.